

August 3rd, 2005

Prof. Jun Murai
Keio University
Vice President
Professor, Faculty of Environmental Information
Graduate School of Media and Governance
5322 Endo Fujisawa Kanagawa 252-8520
JAPAN

Dear Jun,

The Internet Society is pleased to select you for the 2005 Jonathan B. Postel Service Award in recognition of your vision and pioneering work that helped countless others to spread the Internet across the Asia Pacific region.

The Postel Award is given annually to honor those who have made outstanding technical contributions, as well as enabled others to excel with the selfless, cooperative spirit exemplified by Jon Postel. The award recognizes your perseverance to establish Internet connectivity for Japan and other parts of the Asia Pacific region; your key role in creating structures for Internet coordination in the region, particularly APNIC; and your recent pioneering work in IPv6 implementation. You have always encouraged, inspired and helped others, particularly your students, your colleagues in other parts of the Asia Pacific region and fellow Internauts worldwide.

It is our honor and pleasure to acknowledge your work. The Award committee Lynn St. Amour, President of the Internet Society, and I wish to congratulate you.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Daniel Karrenberg", written over a large, stylized, light-colored scribble or watermark.

Daniel Karrenberg
Chair
Internet Society
2005 Jonathan B. Postel Award Committee